

ANNOUNCE SCOUT ADVANCEMENTS AT EMILIE M. E. CHURCH

The Rev. Maconaghy Advises Boys to Watch For The Pitfalls of Life

SEVERAL OTHERS SPEAK

List is Given of The Scouts Receiving Recognition At The Service

The Rev. Alexander Maconaghy spoke to the advancing Boy Scouts at the Emilie Methodist Church, last evening. For some years he was registered in Scouting, prior to going to Tullytown. Scouting is hoping to have a troop at Tullytown next Fall.

The Rev. Maconaghy said: "Outside of your home, the church, and Scouting, there are many pitfalls. Remember the right way of doing things, and you will be happy in life. Scouting is training boys as leaders of the future. If you should make mis-steps, retrace them, and get right with God. Boys read the lives of their leaders as though they were an open book. Set a worthy example for them. The impressions you make will be more important than teaching. Remember—you are educating youth for eternity. Youth are the chief assets of this country and God."

"Your Dividends" was the theme of the remarks of Council President Dr. A. J. Strathie, Newtown, as he awarded the Leaders' Training Certificates. "Our accomplishments in Scouting have been by the devoted men who have given time and funds. Leaders, I want to thank you on behalf of the Council. The farther you go in Scouting, the greater will be its effect on you; it makes all of us better men. The community will receive 'the dividend' of better boys, and we will make the 'dividend' possible by our energy and enthusiasm."

It was a pleasure that Regional Scout Commodore Hon. Thomas B. Stockham was present, and gave the veteran recognitions. Thoughts of Father's Day were included, that "Dad" Continued on Page Two

St. Ann's Church Is The Scene of Pretty Wedding

A wedding took place Sunday at three p. m., in St. Ann's Catholic Church, when Miss Annabelle Manze, daughter of Charles Manze, 226 Penn street, became the bride of Anthony Angelaccio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Angelaccio, 1232 Radcliffe street. As the bride party entered the church, Miss Frances Tamburella played Lohengrin's wedding march. Percy G. Ford, Jackson street, was soloist, and the Rev. Peter Pinci performed the ceremony.

The attendants were Miss Adeline Arcolesse, 915 Wood street, maid of honor, and Miss Frances Peters, 601 Pond street, as bridesmaid. Doris Palletta, 304 Dorrance street, was flower girl. The best man was Rocco Sagolla, 228 Penn street.

The gown worn by the bride was of white satin made on Princess lines. The bodice, shirred in front, featured the sweetheart neckline, long tight sleeves puffed at the shoulder and Queen Ann style collar. The long skirt flared at the bottom and had a long train. The bridal veil of tulle with face veil, was attached to a rhinestone crown. Her sandals were white satin, and she carried white roses and an orchid.

Miss Arcolesse's gown was of white chiffon over taffeta. The neckline was high, finished with a small ruffle of self material, and trimmed with tiny red flowers. The sleeves were short and puffed. The skirt was floor length with a slight train. Encircling her waistline was red velvet ribbon, extending to the hem-line in front. She wore a white horse-hair bonnet trimmed with red velvet ribbon. Her slippers were red linen, and she carried American Beauty roses. Miss Peters was gowned exactly like the maid of honor, and carried American Beauty roses. The flower girl wore white taffeta, made colonial style. The dress featured the high neckline, short puffed sleeves and hoop skirt, with a ruffle of self material around the bottom. Tiny red bows of ribbon trimmed the sleeves and neckline. She wore a poke bonnet trimmed with flowers and red velvet ribbon. Her slippers were white elkskin, and she carried a colonial bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Angelaccio left for a motor trip of one week. They will reside at the home of the bride's father.

Miss Crohe was also an unexpected hostess Saturday evening at a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelson, 247 Roosevelt street. The evening was enjoyed in a social way, singing and dancing, and a lunch was served. Miss Crohe received many gifts.

The invited guests: Mr. and Mrs. Webster Bray, Mr. and Mrs. George Vandenberg and son George, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Nocito, Mr. and Mrs. William Gillies, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Flaherty, and son Joseph, Mrs. Anna Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crohe, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goheen, Mr. and Mrs. Markley Streep, Mr. and Mrs. David Hutchinson, Leo Crohe, Misses Alice and Doris Nelson, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Francis K. Gribbin, Trenton, N. J.; James Mild, Morrisville.

JAPANESE CONTROL MANY RAILROADS NOW

Invaders, Though, Have Been Put To Great Expense To Repair Bridges

NO MANDATE IS GIVEN

(This is the fifth and concluding article of a series by John Goette, International News Service North China correspondent, dealing with a 1,000-mile swing made through the provinces of Hopei, Honan and Shansi, to investigate the Japanese military occupation.—INS.)

By John Goette
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
SHIHCIAHWANG, Hopei Province, China, June 20.—(INS)—Lieutenant General Kiyoshi Katsuki, commander of the Japanese army in the provinces of Hopei, Honan and Shansi, refused to answer the question as to how he squared up the alleged Tokyo policy of no territorial aggrandizement with what I had seen during my thousand mile tour of the occupied areas in these three provinces.

Obviously silence was his only out, for in addition to the three railways over which I had been travelling, the Japanese army had captured the five trunk lines in North China.

Not only had they been captured and are being used by the Japanese army for military purposes, but the lines have been turned over to the powerful quasi-governmental South Manchuria Railway Company to operate with every indication that the arrangement is permanent and not of a temporary military nature.

All of these railways belong to the Chinese National Government. The Japanese have not even attempted to veneer the grab with a mandate from their puppet Provisional Government of the Republic of China in Peking. The army merely captured them and invited the S. M. R. staffs to move in.

The seven trunk railways of North China so treated, had a value of well over $100,000,000 in American currency, and a length of approximately 3,000 miles.

In accordance with a recent mandate, all these Chinese railways are now operated on a basis of Tokyo time, namely an hour in advance of China coast time. Even in such small issues are the rights or conveniences of the rightful Chinese owners ignored by the new Japanese masters.

However, the retreating Chinese armies saw to it that the Japanese should not get any more of a free gift than could be helped. Hundreds upon hundreds of bridges, large and small, were blown up by the Chinese troops. All possible rolling stock was carried away from the advancing Japanese, and when it came to the end of the line, the remainder was burned before the invader arrived.

"Platinum" Might Be Better

By "The Stroller"
"Is there any truth in the story, Mr. Stoller, that the name of Silver Lake is to be changed?"

We sure thought we had a story when we read this opening sentence in one of the communications which came to our desk the other day.

But read on:
"The name 'Silver Lake' is to be changed to 'Gold Lake' because of the tremendous amount of money which this project is costing the government," read the letter.

Well, we must admit plenty of the taxpayers' dollars—silver, paper, gold and otherwise, are being sunk in that lake-project.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

H. John Rosenberger was installed president of the Rotary Club of Doylestown to succeed the retiring president, Walter Erwin, who incidentally is leaving Doylestown because of a transfer to the Chester district where he will represent the Philadelphia Electric Company.

When a mouse was electrocuted in the "workings" of the Quakertown power plant the upper Bucks county town was thrown into darkness. It took electricians about one hour to repair the damage which the rodent had done.

When the "6:29" pulled into the Reading Railroad station at Newtown, Wednesday evening, Frank J. Rook, 72, well-known engineer, stepped out of the engineer's cab for the last time after 52 years and seven months of active service as a railroadman. He is now a full-fledged pensionaire.

One hundred and fifty friends of the well-known Newtown citizen were on hand at the station to stage a little surprise party for Rook, who comes from a family of well-known railroaders.

At a meeting of the pageant committee of the Doylestown Centennial, with Russell B. Gulick, chairman, presiding, announcement was made that the pageant, "Our Yesterdays," cleared $122.53.

Julian W. Gardy, capable and efficient business manager, in his report, stated the total receipts for the three-night attraction amounted to $1854.50. Expenses amounted to $1731.97, showing a profit of $122.53.

Mr. Gardy, who presented the report, explained that 3400 people attended the pageant, which was the largest, finest and most colorful amateur out-of-doors production ever staged in the county. Of the 3400 people who saw the 23-scene production, about 400 were children. One audience, Wednesday night's, numbered 1600 people.

Nineteen girls and boys received their diplomas at the seventh annual commencement exercises of the Upper Southampton High School, held in the school auditorium. The auditorium was decorated in the class colors, blue and white, with the class flower, the blue delphinium, playing a prominent part in the decorating scheme.

The diplomas were awarded by the supervising principal, F. Eugene Klinger, to following members of the class: Helene Bauer, Leonard Bickle, Ralph Hays, John Kuschnia, Ellsworth Miller, Elinor Slack, Kathryn Bridge, Ruth Gillespie, Florence Haney, Martha Hezel, Dorothy Stephens, Pearl Weiss, William Cornell, Grace Johnson, Josephine McMaster, Marjorie Myers, Edgar Shupe, Dorothy Trout and Purdy Weiss.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Cowherd.

Christey J. McGerr Dies After A Short Illness

Christey J. McGerr, husband of Ethel McGerr (nee Angus), died in the United States Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, early Saturday morning, after a short illness. He was 41 years of age and was the son of the late John and Lucy McGerr. Mr. McGerr was taken to the hospital Tuesday, ill with pneumonia. He was a native of Bristol and is survived by his wife, two daughters, Aileen, 12, and Ina, 7; one sister, Mrs. Joseph Sedgwick, Bristol.

The deceased served in the United States Navy during the World War. He was a member of Goodwill Fire Company, No. 3. He was employed for a number of years in the carpet mills of Thomas L. Leedom Co.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral on Tuesday at two p. m., from his late residence, 689 Garden street. The Rev. Howard L. Zapp, pastor of First Baptist Church, will officiate. Interment will be in Bristol Cemetery, with George Molden, funeral director, in charge. Friends may call this evening after eight o'clock.

AT CONVENTION

Mrs. Isabel Jackson, Wood street, was a representative from Lily Rebekah Lodge, No. 366, at the Rebekah and Odd Fellows Convention last week at Bedford. The Convention opened June 12. Sightseeing trips, social functions, visits to the coral caverns and fish hatcheries, memorial service, court of honor, etc., were scheduled during the five days of the affair.

Amissions Are Honored At Delightful Social Affair

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Amission, 269 Jackson street, were guests of honor at a party Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McDevitt, 1618 Wilson avenue, celebrating their second wedding anniversary. Those attending enjoyed the evening in a social way and dancing.

A delicious repast was served to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dixon, Mrs. Esther Smith, Joseph Amission, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rapp, Frankford; Mr. and Mrs. George Fitzpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. John Valyo, Joseph Valyo, Miss Ruth McKeever, Trenton, N. J.

HOLD MAN WANTED IN ELKTON FOR BIGAMY

Clifford P. Dilg, Sr., 23, Arrested at Wrightstown Riding Academy

ALSO WANTED IN PHILA.

DOYLESTOWN, June 20.—Clifford P. Dilg, Sr., 23, of Philadelphia, is being held at the Bucks County Jail for transfer to Philadelphia, for a hearing on a non-support order, and to Elkton, Md., on an alleged bigamy charge.

Dilg is charged with leaving wife No. 1 some time ago after a support order had been placed over his head by the Philadelphia courts.

Dilg, described by the police as "a real shiek," has been living at a riding academy at Wrightstown, from which place he ventured as a wooer into the surrounding countryside.

Wife No. 2, whom he is alleged to have courted but two weeks, is an 18-year-old Hartsville, Bucks county, girl, employed at a Hattboro real estate office. Her name was Alice Coleman until she eloped to Elkton, Md., about a month ago and became Mrs. Dilg (No. 2).

Private Felix R. Gowan, of the criminal investigation bureau of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, at Doylestown, said today:

"Dilg was keeping company with two Doylestown girls and had proposed to marry both of them," Gowan said.

Dilg, with waxed moustache, was arrested Friday by Private Gowan at the Wrightstown Riding Academy, where he cavorted about in riding habit. He was arrested on information of the Hartsville stenographer, who held no brief for him after she learned that he had another wife and thinking of marrying two more.

After his arrest, Dilg told Private Gowan that he had been lucky enough to evade police for some time, and then congratulated the officer on being able to trap him down at Wrightstown.

THIRTY AT SHOWER

A surprise miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Jennie Anabilli, 918 Spring street, Saturday evening, by her attendant-to-be, Miss Frances Biancasina, Logan street. The guests were present when Miss Anabilli returned home. The evening was spent in a social way and a buffet lunch was served to 30 guests.

Extra-Session Talk

Washington, June 18.

IT IS interesting that simultaneously with the end of Congress there should be an immediate burst of speculation concerning the calling of an extra session, usually a thing which both the legislative and executive branches like to avoid and for which there certainly is no popular desire.

NEVERTHELESS, it seems fairly certain that the subject has already been discussed among the "influential insiders" at the White House and it is authoritatively stated that the President has the call in mind. Already there are in Washington two divergent opinions as to the reasons for this strange situation in an election year. One group con-

Miss Elizabeth Chambers Dies After Long Illness

Following a lengthy illness, Miss Elizabeth Chambers, daughter of Josephine E. and the late Harry Chambers, died at her home, 15 La Cede avenue, Trenton, N. J., yesterday.

Miss Chambers, who was a sister of Mrs. Robert C. Ruel, 314 Cedar street, was a teacher in Junior High School No. 4, Trenton. She previously was a member of the faculty of Bristol public schools, and for the past 20 years taught in Trenton.

Miss Chambers was highly regarded among the students of Trenton Junior High School No. 4, and the year book of that institution, "The Argus," has just been released. The book was dedicated to her with these words: "It is in loving acknowledgment of such a rare guide that we dedicate the 1938 Argus to Elizabeth Chambers."

The pallbearers will be students of Junior high school.

The deceased was a member of Bristol Presbyterian Church.

Surviving Miss Chambers, who was very well known, and who had a host of friends, are her mother; and two sisters, Mrs. Richard Fisher, Trenton, N. J., and Mrs. Ruel, Bristol.

Relatives and friends, also faculty and pupils of Junior High School No. 4, Trenton, are invited to the funeral services, from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Ruel, 314 Cedar street, Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. The Rev. James R. Gailey, pastor of Bristol Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Hansche of Prospect St. Presbyterian Church, Trenton, will officiate. Interment is to be in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call at her late residence, Tuesday evening.

LEGION JUNIOR NINE WINS OPENING GAME HERE

PETERPAUL BIG HITTER

Saturday afternoon on Landreth's field, the American Legion junior baseball nine won its first game of the season when they defeated the boys from Doylestown by an overwhelming score of 11-6. This was Bristol's initial game of the season because of a cancelled game with Perkaskie which was scheduled for last Saturday.

Bristol took the field with seven of last year's men, leaving only two spots to be filled in. They were taken care of by "Boake" Carter, who proved his worth around the initial sack; and "Bullmont" Peterpaul, who played Continued on Page Four Cipriotti-Mannone Nuptial Ceremony Occurs in Md.

Miss Maria Concetta Mannone, daughter of Rosario Mannone, Baltimore, Md., and Charles Cipriotti, son of Mrs. Nicholas Mangiaracina, 937 Beaver street, were married Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in St. Martin's Church, Baltimore.

The bridesmaid was Miss Antoinette Mangiaracina, 937 Beaver street, and the best man was Anthony Mannone, brother of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white chiffon over satin, with long full skirt and train. The tulle veil was attached to a wreath of orange blossoms. Her slippers were white satin, and she carried white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid wore a gown of aqua chiffon over satin of the same tone. The long, full skirt had a slight train. A halo of pleated pink tulle and shoulder length veil, long lace mitts and slippers in the same tone, completed her costume, and she carried pink roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride. Following a week's honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Cipriotti will reside at the home of the groom's mother here.

TWO WEDDINGS OCCUR IN BRISTOL CHURCHES

Miss Elizabeth A. Cummons Is Bride of Geo. W. Perkins, Saturday

BUSTRAAN-McLAUGHLIN

Amid a setting of palms, a wedding was solemnized, Saturday afternoon, at three o'clock, in Bristol Methodist Church, when Miss Elizabeth A. Cummons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cummons, 531 Linden street, became the bride of George W. Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Perkins, 717 Wood street.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. J. Carpenter Zook. Miss Hilda McArthur, Edgely, played the organ selection, and also accompanied Miss Carrie Rapp, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her cousin, Miss Mildred Holland, Crofton, as maid of honor; Miss Florence Brannigan, Madison street, a cousin, as bridesmaid, and Ruth Ann Tereson, Linden street, as flower girl. Richard Brown, Garfield street, served the groom as best man.

The bride wore a form-fitting gown of white chiffon over satin, featuring a round neckline trimmed with tiny rosebuds of self material, the bodice being shirred in front. It had long, tight sleeves shirred and puffed at the shoulder, and ending in a point over the hands. The skirt was full and ended in a long train. Her long bridal veil of white tulle and orange blossoms, and face veil shoulder length, were attached to a crown of orange blossoms and pearls, and tied under Continued on Page Two

Edith A. Potena Is Bride Of Anthony L. Carnvale

Miss Edith A. Potena, niece of Pasquale Faglione, 340 Penn street, and Anthony L. Carnvale, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Carnevale, Trenton, N. J., were joined in marriage Sunday at two p. m., in St. Ann's Catholic Church, by the Rev. Peter Pinci. Miss Frances Tamburella played the wedding march, and the choir sang.

The maid of honor was Miss Carmela DiLorenzo, Wood street, and the best man, Dominick Potena, Camden, N. J., brother of the bride.

The bride was attractive in a gown of white satin fashioned on Princess lines. The long skirt flared at the bottom, and ended with a train. The bridal veil of tulle had a crown of orange blossoms. She wore white satin slippers, and carried an arm bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss DiLorenzo was attired in yellow marquisette. The full skirt was cut long and ended with a slight train. Tiny bows of ribbon trimmed the skirt. Blue slippers and a yellow felt hat with wide brim trimmed in powder blue were worn, and she carried a colonial bouquet of mixed flowers.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. The couple left for a two weeks' motor trip to Canada. The bride travelled in a navy blue dress with white accessories. They will reside in an apartment at 333 Bayard street, Trenton, N. J.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mark's school. The groom attended Cathedral high school, Trenton, N. J., and Trenton Industrial Art School. He is employed by the Public Service Company in Trenton.

BETROTHED

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Squillace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Squillace, 515 Pond street, to Albert Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Roberts, 349 Lincoln avenue, was announced at a party Saturday evening at the Squillace home, Peter Sagolla, 521 Pond street, uncle of the bride, announced the engagement. A mock wedding was enjoyed, and among those taking part were Mary Sagolla, Philomena DeLuca, Louise Galzerano, Rose Spezzano and Patsy Alta. Miss Squillace received many pretty gifts. About 125 people attended.

ANDALUSIA MAN IS A HIT-RUN VICTIM; DIES IN HOSPITAL

Harry Ferguson is Found Unconscious Along Bristol Pike This Morning

FRACTURE OF SKULL

Dies Here Two Hours After Found; Was 42 Years Old

Believed to be the victim of a hit-run accident, Harry Ferguson, Ellwood avenue, Andalusia, died in Harriman Hospital, this morning at 5:15, as the result of a fractured skull. He was 42 years of age.

The Andalusian was in an unconscious state when found lying along Bristol Pike, Andalusia, this morning at three o'clock. He was taken to Harriman Hospital by Pennsylvania Highway Patrolmen of Oxford Valley sub-station.

Parents of the man, Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson, with whom he made his home, state that it was the victim's habit to attend service in a church near his home, Sunday evenings, then go to his place of employment in Frankford for some papers, returning home on the one a. m. trolley.

It is the opinion of the parents that the son missed the usual trolley, and took a later one. He was apparently walking from the end of the trolley line to his home, when struck by a motor vehicle.

Ferguson has been employed for the past 12 or 13 years by the P. R. T., he being engaged as a night watchman at the car barn at Bridge street, Frankford.

The victim, who was single, is survived by his parents, who reside on Ellwood avenue; a sister, Mrs. Margaret Bitzer, Holmesburg; and two brothers, John Wesley Ferguson and J. Raymond Ferguson, Andalusia.

Natal Anniversary Party Tendered To V. Johnson

Victor Johnson, 246 Hayes street, was tendered a birthday party Sunday at the home of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson, Yardley. The day was enjoyed playing games, swimming, and fishing, with races for the children. Refreshments were served.

Those attending: Mr. and Mrs. Angus Gillies, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ferguson and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Collins and children, Mr. and Mrs. William Gillies and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Gillies, Jr., and children, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Johnson, Miss Angeline Sylvestri, Joseph, George and Theodore Kerlyn, Mr. and Mrs. William Fawcett and daughter, Bristol; George Johnson and Miss Mabel Dugan, Norristown; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mertz and children, and John Johnson, Princeton, N. J.; Mrs. William Fawcett, Trevese; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snyder and son, Charles, Crofton; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnson and family, Yardley.

EVERY WOMAN SHOULD KNOW FIRST AIDS FOR HOME EMERGENCIES

"In an emergency it is highly essential that we exercise self-control—that we keep cool. At such times we should work fast, keep quiet, and remember to be clean about everything we do as far as is possible under the circumstances. It is sometimes necessary, especially when dealing with children, to exercise firmness, but at the same time we can be considerate and gentle. We should be careful and accurate in our observations and, above all, not forget to send for the doctor."

This common-sense advice is taken from a chapter in the new and interesting volume, "The Woman and the Home," part of the Modern Health Library now being distributed exclusively by the Courier.

This Health Library was prepared by two famous physicians, Dr. William A. Sadler and Dr. Lena K. Sadler, who are also husband and wife. Dr. Lena Sadler's long association with the problems of the home-maker and mother renders her well qualified to discuss these problems in interesting and non-technical language.

In addition to a complete chapter devoted to home accidents and emergencies, other problems of home management—motherhood—personal hygiene are discussed.

THE MAPLE LEAF

The fun which Mr. Farley and his artists have been having with the design of new postage stamp issues seems to be only a single manifestation of a universal artistic urge. Canada is passing through a similar stage of experimentation with the discarding of traditional stamp faces and the substitution of novel ideas in postal art. The residents of the Dominion appear receptive enough to the change except for an occasional protest against the disappearance of the maple leaf, constant emblem of the country for decades.

One of the voices raised in behalf of the retention of the maple leaf on stamps is that of the Edmonton Journal, which is unable to find reason or significance for the absence of the maple leaf. The newspaper speaks from unselfish motives so far as its own province of Alberta is concerned, since Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are the provinces which regard themselves as the real homes of the maple, which since the jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1897 has served as a symbol not only on stamps but also on currency, coinage, government proclamations, unofficial flags and documents.

The generosity of this Alberta attitude is apparent in view of the fact that the new stamps are nicely complimentary of the western provinces with scenes that are brilliant examples of the engraver's art.

WHAT WILL THE SUMMER BE?

Tomorrow summer will begin and with its beginning we hope there will be an end to all the meteorological foolishness of the winter and spring preceding. We hope that summer, unlike the past winter and the present fading spring, will be content with half measure. Just because the winter was one of record-breaking cold and the spring alternately too wet and then too cold is no reason why summer should have to be, for instance, too hot. The supply of extremes has been sufficient. A little moderation is in order.

Here is opportunity, as a matter of fact, for the weather man to compensate for the insult and injury perpetrated on us in recent months. Mankind, we suspect, would be willing to let bygones be bygones, to forgive and forget what we have suffered from the weather if the coming season will only be reasonable. Perhaps there is already the beginning of atonement. But it could hardly be any more than a start in the right direction. There will have to be more rain and improvements in other directions as well before atonement will be complete. Shall we look to the summer for better things?

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Nov. 30, 1876. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

On Monday night last, several attempts were made at burglary in Bristol, only one of which was successful. Thieves entered Closson's Hotel over the transom of the bar room door, and took what money was in the drawer, amounting to about $25, and some other property of perhaps equal value. J. Wesley Wright's store also attracted the notice of these thieves. They broke the grating of the cellar window next to the canal, but found a heavy iron bar impeding their progress, so were compelled to relinquish the job. At Leuba & Co.'s new clothing store, on Mill street, the same night, the transom was removed, and a man attempted to enter. Mr. Leuba, who sleeps in the store, being awakened by the sound, accidentally made a noise with a chair, which alarmed the burglars, and they beat a hasty retreat.

The Lumberton Granite Company, which are in operation about a mile below Lumberville, this county, first took possession of the grounds five years ago last August, when they could only turn out but seven boat loads of stone a month. Their business has gradually increased, however, and now they load two boats every 24 hours. The stone is principally used in Philadelphia, although a considerable quantity finds other markets. A number of the factories, machine shops, etc., of Bristol, were built of this stone. The quarries and farm upon which they are located, belong to Thomas H. Kemble, of Philadelphia. Norris H. Hannum, Esq., is the superintendent of the quarries.

On Saturday last, Mrs. Bird, a resident of Doylestown, was almost instantly killed by falling down the cellar stairway of her residence. She tripped and fell backward down the whole flight of stairs. Her daughter heard her fall and called for assistance. When the unfortunate woman was picked up, she was totally unconscious and lived but a few minutes after she was taken to the upper floor. The physicians thought her neck had been broken by the fall.

On Wednesday evening of last week, a spiritual meeting came off, as advertised, in Johnson's Hall, Humesville, under the management of Peter Watson (colored), of Bensalem, with J. Pervis as medium. When the hour of commencement was at hand "Pervis" tried hard to "get the trance on," but concluded after a little that the spirit wouldn't move him, or in other words let the audience know that they were "sold." Some of the younger and more revengeful of the audience, concluded they would help Peter and his spiritual medium out of town, and procured a rail of usual length, and helped Peter upon it. When they had gone a short distance, he fell off, and the crowd, taking pity, concluded to let him go, and treat his companion to a similar ride, but he had vanished we suppose to the "spirit land." We hear that Mr. Watson is trying to procure the names of his assailants, and will resort to law to pay him for the injury done his dignity.

An election of officers of Bristol Lodge of Masons was held last Saturday evening. The following named officers were elected for the ensuing year: Joseph A. Martin, W. M.; Harry D. Young, S. W.; Dr. G. W. Kirk, J. W.; William B. Baker, treasurer; and Charles E. Scott, secretary. They were duly installed into office by P. M., B. F. Gilkeson.

The funeral of Watson Comly, at Byberry Meeting House, last Saturday, was largely attended, many friends from the city, Bucks County, and other places, being present.

Quite a number of youths in this vicinity are engaged in the trapping business. A son of L. C. Fetter, of Newportville, has already caught 13 muskrats.

Doylestown is much pleased with its new depot.

On last Thursday night, thieves entered the store of John Longstreet, corner of Bath and Buckley streets, by climbing in over the transom at the door. They attempted to force open the money drawer, but were evidently alarmed before they got it accomplished, as they left the premises without taking anything of value.

The Great Game of Politics

second, that it ignores the fact that it wasn't the fault of Congress the railroad legislation went by the board at the last session but the fault of the President. Partly moved by dislike of Senator Wheeler, of Montana, with whom he would have had to co-operate, and partly by some of the more aggressive of his radical advisers, who urge that the best thing to do is to let the railroads go through the wringer, Mr. Roosevelt exhibited an almost complete indifference to the plan to aid them. Through the restoration one way or another of railroad purchasing and employing power clearly would be a great and effective stimulation to business, the President put no real weight behind any effort in that direction. It is entirely accurate to describe his interest in the legislation as perfunctory. That with this record of refusal to extend aid to the railroads at the time it could have been done most effectively, he should now call Congress back before the election for that purpose hardly seems credible. And the idea that he "planned it that way" is absurd.

A MUCH more plausible assumption of why Mr. Roosevelt and his friends have been talking of an extra session—after and not before an election in November—is that he intends to make another effort to revive and pass the departmental reorganization bill. Only the fact assurance from his legislative leaders that it could not be successfully done, prevented him from making another fight for this measure last month. It is known that he not only has not given up hope of the bill but is determined to secure its enactment. If the President calls a special session before January, 1939, the bill, having already passed the Senate, can be brought up again in the House with great legislative ease and disposed of one way or another with great speed.

IF, however, he waits until the new Congress convenes, the whole business would have to start fresh. The bill would have to be introduced and referred again to the proper committees in House and Senate. This would mean another long series of open hearings. It would mean another long Senate debate and it would afford opportunity for the recreation of the same sort of popular sentiment that brought about its defeat in the House. Also, it is a fact that Mr. Roosevelt will not be as strong in the next Congress as he is in this. Even the Administration politicians concede a loss of thirty-five seats in the next House. Clearly, then, the chances of putting through this pet proposal, the rejection of which the President deeply resented, are very much better in a special session of the still existing Congress than in the regular session of the one to be elected in November. Those in best position to know believe that if Mr. Roosevelt does call an extra session—and it is true he is considering it—the principal purpose will be to make another drive for his reorganization bill and not to help the railroads. At heart, he is not nearly as much concerned about the latter as he is about the former.

The flower girl was pretty in a dress of pale blue organdie with a sash of pink and blue satin rosebuds. The square neckline was trimmed with rosebuds, and pink socks and white slippers and pink hair bow completed the costume. She carried a basket of pink roses and blue lace. The groom's mother, Mrs. Perkins, wore a gown of navy marquisette, trimmed white, with navy accessories, and wore a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 50 guests attending.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins will live with the bride's parents after a week's honeymoon. Mrs. Perkins is a graduate of Bristol high school and Banks Business College, Philadelphia, and is a secretary in the office of Sears, Roebuck and Company, Philadelphia. Mr. Perkins is employed by Fleetwings, Inc.

A wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in Bristol Presbyterian Church, when the Rev. James R. Galley performed the ceremony uniting Miss Helen McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McLaughlin, Edgely, and Cornelius Bustraan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bustraan.

Mrs. M. Weagley, organist, played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party entered the church. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by her sister, Miss Mary McLaughlin. Serving as best man was Adrian Bustraan, brother of the groom. Ushers were Charles Harker, cousin of the bride, Julius town, N. J., and John Bustraan, Edgely, cousin of the groom.

The vocalist was John Conyers, Edgely, who sang "Oh, Promise Me," and "Perfect Day."

The bride was attired in a gown of white lace over satin, fashioned on long, form-fitting lines, with long sleeves cut full to the elbow and tight trimmed to the wrist. The bodice was fitted with tiny satin covered buttons down the front to the hemline, and the sleeves to the elbow. The skirt ended in a train. Her slippers were white satin, and her veil of tulle edged with lace, was made cap shape, trimmed with orange blossoms. The bride carried white roses and valley lilies.

Miss Mary McLaughlin wore aqua mousseline de sole over peach satin, redingote style, with a wide border of lace down the front and around the hemline. The skirt ended in a short train. She wore aqua slippers, and a peach halo with a shoulder-length veil of aqua and carried a bouquet of tallis-man roses and valley lilies.

A reception was held at the bride's home for the immediate families.

The bride's mother was attired in navy blue with white accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother wore navy with white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

The couple left Saturday evening for Atlantic City, N. J., where they will spend a week. They will reside in their newly-furnished apartment at Mill and Pond streets. Mrs. Bustraan traveled in a black and white dotted redingote with white accessories.

"The Stolen God" by EDISON MARSHALL

SYNOPSIS

When Ned Holden stepped from the train at Bangkok, Siam, he looked the typical American tourist on his first trip to the Orient. Yet Holden, son of a devoted Yankee mother and a zealous American missionary, had grown up in Asia. Officially an ethnologist, he is actually a secret service man who helps "maintain the white man's peace" over a million square miles of savage country. Back from a dangerous search for an Annamite revolutionary, Holden plans a three months' holiday. He meets Virginia Griffin, attractive American girl from St. Louis, Missouri, and tells her about the famous Emerald Buddha with a sacred diamond in its forehead. Daniel Griffin, noted Oriental art collector, and his secretary and Virginia's fiancé, André Chambon, join the party. Holden learns at the palace that the Emerald Buddha has been stolen from the temple. Revolution may result if it cannot be recovered before the Siamese winter festival six weeks hence. Loathe to undertake the search since Virginia's father, as a collector, is under suspicion, Holden finally consents to do so at the King's urgent request.

CHAPTER V

Ned spent part of the following morning looking through archeological records in the royal museums and libraries. There was one sentence that he encountered, with slight variations, again and again. "This rare and beautiful piece is now believed to be in the private collection of Daniel Griffin, in St. Louis."

Some of his treasures he had bought from Chinese war lords who had taken the things as loot. Many had simply disappeared from their native depositories and failed to show up again until Griffin cleared them through American customs. Although he had never visited the Laotian country, in interior Indo-China, Laotian art seemed to be his special fetish. And the Emerald Buddha, with its sacred diamond, had come out of that land!

But still he remembered a home-ly-speaking Middle Westerner in mussing lines.

At four o'clock Ned and old Koh-Ken were waiting in a friend's office across the street from the Royal Oriental Hotel. In Ned's pocket was a passkey—Ralston had supplied this—that unlocked the doors of Griffin's suites. Presently he saw Griffin and his daughter and secretary ride away in a car. She was dressed in white, wore a little white hat with a peppy brim, and carried a white parasol. Ned cursed the Emerald Buddha from the Bo-tree to Nirvana.

Posting Koh-Ken as lookout, he was soon standing in the empty corridor of the hotel, unlocking Griffin's door with a steady hand. Coldly, swiftly, he set about his search.

As he had known beforehand, there was no sign of the Emerald Buddha. Griffin's single trunk was unlocked; either innocence or cunning, Ned could not tell which. At the bottom of his laundry bag was his only secret hoard—two bottles of cloudy liquid which Ned guessed was Missouri corn whiskey. There were a few letters in the brief case which he scanned rapidly and replaced.

He went next to Chambon's room. It had been his lodging only for a night or two, but already it bore the faint but unmistakable imprint of a complex, powerful personality. The toilet articles on the dresser belonged to a French dandy, but there was a businesslike big-calibered pistol under his pillow. Three hotel pictures, in this case worse than usual, had been taken down and stored behind the tub, but on the reading table and stands were several clues of great interest and value: gifts from his employer's collection. Among them was a bronze incense burner of the Sung dynasty, a small copper elephant that looked Laotian, and a jade altar group of Buddha with attendant divinities.

There was a box of fine Havana cigars on the table, and in a dark corner of his closet a half-smoked package of the cheapest, rankest Burma cheroots.

In the meantime Ned had noticed two photographs on the table. He glanced at them carelessly, then with a kind of stealth, as though he feared their cardboard eyes could read his thoughts. The picture that interested him most was of a distinguished Frenchman, the lapel of his evening coat covered with decorations; probably the vicomte's hardly given me enough francs to live on. I, whose ancestors were great lords when his were chained serfs in a field, can buy no perfume, no snails (yes, the word was imagons) let alone medicine. And these are my last years.

You will avenge my wrongs, even as you avenge the fallen heads. The time is soon now. You will hear the call and see the glory. If Chow See Veet....

The letter ended as it began, in mystery. Ned stood holding it in his hand, as though he were trying to feel with his delicate fingers what it would not reveal to his eyes.

Ned's flying hands stopped in mid-air. He heard a rapid step in the corridor.

father. So far, so good. But on the nobleman's shirt-front, just over the heart, was what first appeared to be a red dyspeck. And then Ned saw it was a tiny drop of red ink.

It took a good deal to shake Ned Holden. Once he had seen a four-foot pile of human heads in a remote Chinese market-place, and once, in upper Burma, he had arrived ten minutes too late to stop a crucifixion. But at the sight of a tiny ink mark on a piece of cardboard, a curious and intensely disagreeable quiver shot across his scalp. This was not honest blood, like that of other. It flowed from no simple and natural cause, such as loot and empire and the rivalry of the gods. There was a secret here that might not be good to solve.

The other photograph was a poor, dim likeness of a handsome dark woman with tragic eyes. But its frame was a wonder-work in carved white jade.

Ned went on with his search. Chambon's trunk was locked, but in the key-ring Ralston had borrowed from the customs was a key to fit. Apparently the trunk held nothing of interest.

Wait! There was a tear in the cloth lining, and tucked into it, a package of letters. Most of these were love letters by the same girl's hand. When Ned glanced at the signature, the quick, smooth flow of his movements momentarily failed. He stopped, drew a long breath, then coldly glanced over the lines.

In the packet was one document of peculiar interest. It was a loose page of cheap French paper, scrawled by a woman's hand. He translated roughly:

...tired of me and made me go away. He is not altogether to blame for this—I look old already, and the Paris ladies are young even at forty. But he has

He could not find the key—but he did receive a warning. It rang like an alarm in the back of his head. Danger! That was what it said. It stopped the whirl of his thoughts, and sent him stealing on tiptoe to the door.

He had blundered into a storm of human passion. What if Chambon, with his black-fire eyes, should open the door and find him, the letter in his hand? Ned did not know, but his imagination moved unpleasantly.

He replaced the letter and locked the trunk. Listening a moment, he stole into Griffin's room and through the side door to the room beyond. But he stopped on the threshold, almost repugnance at this whole business sweeping over him. Here was Virginia's room.

Her merry little ghosts were in it now. Windows wide open. A novel and a box of candy beside the bed. A pleasant disorder on the dressing table. A number of hats tried on and discarded. A pair of dusty shoes kicked off and lying where they fell. But he went on with his search. He peered into closets; lifted big cardboard boxes. At last he paused before two wardrobe trunks. Must he pry into these? It was like eaves-dropping on a girl's secrets.

Grimly he knelt and began to try the locks.... But just then his flying hands stopped in mid-air, and he threw up his head with a wild movement, reminiscent of the savage folk of the hills. He heard a rapid step in the corridor.

It was Koh-Ken. The old servant paused at the door—his light fingers touched the panel—then sped on. Immediately behind him came another step—so soft that only jungle-trained ears could hear it. It also stopped at the door, but did not pass on.

Such tactics have caused the Japanese to send thousands of freight cars, passenger coaches into North China from Manchuria and Korea. Japanese military engineers have expended millions of dollars and months of hard labor in restoring destroyed bridges.

Except for the Peking-Mukden Railway, Chinese passengers shun the other lines.

With the vast quantities of Japanese rolling stock came hordes of Japanese employees of the South Manchuria Railway Company to replace completely the Chinese who operated their railways before the war. From locomotive drivers down through road repair gangs, the personnel is all Japanese.

Japanese spokesmen reveal that the finishing touches are being put on the agreement whereby control of the six North China trunk lines will be handed by Tokyo to the North China Development Company, an operating branch of the South Manchuria Railway Company.

There is no mention of securing any form of Chinese sanction for this revolutionary step. It appears to be a gift from the Japanese army to the Japanese company.

According to the spokesmen, the new venture will be capitalized at 150,000,000 Yen. The plan also looks to the inclusion of the 550 mile Lungai Railway so soon as it is captured by the Japanese army.

Thus Japan will gain and China lose its trunk lines of the Peking-Mukden, one-half of the Peking-Hankow, Peking-Suiyuan, Tientsin-Pukow, Cheng-Tai, Tsinan Tsing-tao, and Tatung-Puchow Railways in North China.

The spokesman also revealed that a Central China Development Company will have a gift of 370 miles of the Shanghai-Nanking, and the Shanghai-Hangchow and Ningpo Railways in Central China.

That grab will set back the Chinese Government another $15,000,000 in American currency, the value of the two lines.

GRAND

The three Ritz Brothers, taking a hilarious, tongue-in-the-cheek poke at the radio broadcasting studio's penchant for talent quests, are scheduled to open today at the Grand Theatre in their latest starring comedy, "Kentucky Moonshine."

In this 20th Century-Fox film, with Darryl F. Zanuck in charge of production, the now established madmen of the movies have added many extra film frenzies to provide merriment.

Interpolated through the plot of "Kentucky Moonshine" is a romance between Tony Martin, the popular radio (and more recently) screen crooner, and the delightful Marjorie Weaver, who has come a long way toward stardom since her "break" in "Second Honeymoon."

BRISTOL

Do you have a desire to know whether your sweetheart is true to you, and, perhaps, the day and date when you'll be carrying a bridal bouquet up the aisle to the strains of Mendelssohn's popular march? Or, perhaps, the fate of your financial investments, or the trend of your business affairs?

These questions and many others Princess Yvonne, "Mystic Wonder Woman," will answer during her two-day stay in the Bristol Theatre, starting today at the matinee, 2 o'clock. In addition to the regular matinee and evening performances, there will be a special morning matinee tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. for women only. At this performance women will be able to ask questions that they would not feel free to ask at regular performances.

Coming direct from a triumphant tour of the leading theatres of this country, Yvonne is leaving in her wake a sensational maze of mystery and surprise. If there is anything at all that you would like to know, you have merely to ask, and Yvonne will tell you. You too will be mystified with this most remarkable development of the strangest of Gifts. She knows your thoughts while they are still thoughts and answers the questions which weigh down your mind. To miss Princess Yvonne is to miss sparkling and fascinating entertainment.

In Memoriam

DE LUCA—In loving memory of our darling son and brother, Thomas, who died June 20, 1937.

Gone dear Thomas, gone forever, How we miss your smiling face. But you left us to remember, None on earth can take your place. A happy home we once enjoyed, How sweet the memory still. But death has left a loneliness The world can never fill.

"EDDIE" BROWN TO TOP FIGHT CARD AT ST. ANN'S ARENA

Game Irish Youngster From Lambertville to Fight James Pairant

EIGHT BOUTS CARDED

Pat Mattucci Booked to Meet Henry Varara in One Of the Bouts

Fight fans of this vicinity will again have an opportunity of witnessing eight thrilling bouts as the St. Ann's Athletic Association holds another of its weekly boxing shows tonight in its outdoor arena, Wood and Franklin streets. A capacity crowd is expected.

Thus far, the three shows booked have met the approval of every boxing devotee who has been present and none can deny the fact that the shows booked by Matchmaker Johnny Straffe this season are among the best that have been matched in this vicinity.

Topping tonight's show Johnny Straffe has Eddie Brown, game Irish youngster from Lambertville and who represents St. Ann's, against James Pairant, Sigma Theta. Those who saw Brown last week are certain that the Irish boy has the goods and feel that he can deliver a knockout blow against his colored opponent.

For the third time, the fans are getting another Pat Mattucci-Henry Varara bout. Mattucci, proud possessor of a fifteen-fight streak, has beaten Varara twice in the local ring. However, both decisions were close and many fans disagreed with the verdicts. Now, Mattucci is making the statement that he will lay the Roeboling boy so that no decision will be necessary.

Hokey Leighton will shoot at another victory when he meets Robert Jackson, Sigma Theta. Jackson has gained quite a reputation in amateur circles and has requested this bout with Leighton for he feels certain that he can whip the Croydon youngster.

The bout which is expected to steal the show is that between two boys who mix comedy with fighting. They are James "Dumpy" Nocito, unattached, and Ray Robinson, Langhorne, who fights for St. Ann's. Nocito and Robinson are evenly matched and when serious the boys should throw plenty of punches.

Steve Litus, Roeboling youth who was going great until he received a terrific blow in the stomach last week is back again. This time his foe will be Stanley Louis, Sigma Theta. Litus is favored over the Sigma boxer and it will not be surprising to see the St. Ann's fighter, finish it with a knockout.

It's a long walk down the comeback trail but Russell Pearson, St. Ann's, is out to make it. Pearson was stopped by Jesse Cotton in his last start and is out to begin all over again, starting with Bob Wolk, Ontario. Wolk hits hard and the St. Ann's glover will have to be able to take plenty if he intends to top the Ontario representative.

Babe Mattucci, Atlas C. C., who disappointed the fans last week with his exhibition is out to redeem himself in the eyes of the public. He will meet Jesse Cotton, Ontario. The bouts will open at eight-thirty o'clock sharp, with Jimmy Lefferts, Ontario, fighting Guido Capriotti, unattached.

STALLONE'S DRIVE WINS FOR BRISTOL A. A. NINE

With the score 4 to 3 in favor of Phila. Cardinals in the ninth inning and two men out, Johnny Stallone stepped to the plate with Hal Snyder on base and drove the ball over center field fence scoring two runs, winning the game for Bristol A. A., 5 to 4.

Hal Snyder and Bullet Harris both pitched good ball. Zeffries, Cooper, Stallone and Choma fielded in great shape. Both Cooper and Zeffries made hair-raising catches. Harris fanned 17 local batters, but the A. A. team kept picking at his fast delivery and produced enough runs to win.

LODGE'S HOME-RUN WINS FOR FARMERS

A home-run by Claude Lodge, Landreth Seeds heavy-hitting right-fielder, gave them a win over Crescentville, one of the best independent teams in the Philadelphia area, at Landreth Ball Park, yesterday afternoon, 4-2.

Lodge's circuit clout, landing in the creek beyond right field, which eventually won the game, came in the fifth inning, after Rockhill tied the score on his single, Liberator's sacrifice, and Dougherty's hit. It ran Lodge's total for runs driven in to 11 for three games.

Crescentville scored in the opening session on Graf's hit, Gourley's sacrifice, and Achilles safety. The Farmers tied things up in the second on Griggs' right field hit and Broderick's three bagger which fell just inside the foul line in right field.

The visitors again took the lead in the fifth inning, when Graf hit to left for two sacks and Fletcher singled him home for their second and final run.

Wilson Holland, although a bit wild at times, pitched a creditable game. He fanned eight of the visitors and allowed seven hits.

and Liberator for Landreth's, starred in the field. Incidentally, Liberator has accepted 68 chances at second without a miscue in the 12 games played by Landreth's.

The Farmers have played 12 games, winning eight, losing three and one tied.

Thursday night the Landreth Seeds will play the original House of David at Landreth Ball Park at 6.15.

Landreth Seeds play at Edgerton, N. J., Friday; twilight game at Toms River, Saturday afternoon; Philadelphia Italians at Landreth Ball Park next Sunday.

dent to mar proceedings. The home-made rattle-traps that frequently caused long delays because of motor trouble in previous programs were missing yesterday. The fact that only three of the 18 starters in the final event were forced to the pits by actual motor trouble is an indication of the class of the cars competing. Several cars were forced out by flats, however.

Three match races were run during the afternoon and the hair-line finishes proved popular with the crowd. Mays took the first, Winn the second, and Horn the third. Nalon competed in these tests, but got only a third in the first trial.

The summaries:
10-Mile Qualifying Heat: Won by Rex Mays; second, Billy Winn; third, Mauri Rose. Time: 6:06.10. Duke Nalon, Ted Horn, Tony Willman, Gus Zarka and George Connors also started.

right field. Both of these boys showed their ability by playing good ball in their respective positions. Peterpaul led his team with the stick, collecting three hits out of four trips to the plate.

LaPolla started on the mound for the localites and Myers for the visitors. Neither of these two boys lasted the whole game. Myers left the game in the sixth inning, while LaPolla lasted until the eighth, when Doylestown started to put on a rally. During his stay in the box, LaPolla struck out six, walked nine, hit two batters; they collected for four hits, and scored five runs.

After Doylestown had gone scoreless in their first, Bristol accounted for three tallies on a walk, two singles, and a play at first. The Brackenites went scoreless in the second inning, but accounted for two more runs in the third frame on a single, double, an error, and a fly. Both teams went scoreless in the fourth frame. In the fifth inning the visitors scored their first tally on two walks, a single, and a force-out. Bristol came in to score four times on five singles, a force-out, and a hit batsman. In the seventh, Doylestown scored twice, but it wasn't until the eighth that they drove LaPolla from the box, when they scored three times. Bristol ended the scoring for the day when they scored twice in their half of the eighth.

The leading hitters of the day were Peterpaul, Bauroth, VanLenten and Dick, for the homesters; while Wodocock was the only visitor who could find LaPolla's slants for more than one hit; he grabbed two hits in four official trips to the plate.
